Publicly traded securities are valued by reference to their bid price or last traded price, if applicable, on the relevant exchange. Where trading in the securities of an investee company is suspended, the investment is valued at the Board's estimate of its fair value (in consultation with the Investment Manager). Unquoted securities will be valued by such method or methods as the Board shall determine. In making its valuations, the Board takes into account, where appropriate, latest dealing prices, valuations from reliable sources, asset values and other relevant factors. If the Directors consider that any of the above bases of valuation are inappropriate in any particular case, or generally, they may adopt such other valuation procedures as they consider reasonable in the circumstances.

EU Regulation 2019/2088 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 November 2019 on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial services sector (the "EU Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation")

The Investment Manager has determined that the Company is not subject to Article 8(1), 9(1), 9(2) or 9(3) of the EU Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation. Accordingly, the investments underlying this financial product do not take into account the EU criteria for environmentally sustainable economic activities.

Article 6 Disclosures

The Investment Manager integrates sustainability risks into its investment decisions. A sustainability risk is an environmental, social or governance event or condition that, if it occurs, could cause an actual or potential material negative impact on the value of an investment.

ESG Integration

The Investment Manager strives to embed socially responsible practices and policies into its operations and investment activities wherever possible. This includes incorporating relevant ESG factors into its investment decisions. The White Oak Capital Group (which includes the Investment Manager) has signed the United Nations-supported "Principles for Responsible Investment" (PRI) to support its commitment towards responsible investing.

The Investment Manager believes that financially material ESG factors should be incorporated into investment decision-making and therefore incorporates ESG analysis into its evaluation of potential investment opportunities for the Company.

When evaluating a potential investment opportunity, the Investment Manager identifies and analyses what it believes are the material ESG factors relevant to the particular investee company and sector. ESG factors are considered material if they currently cause, or could eventually bring about, material financial outcomes, including but not limited to those that could adversely impact the creditworthiness of an investee company or otherwise lower returns or increase the risk profile of a proposed investment. The relevance and materiality of any particular factor will vary depending on the specific circumstances of the investment opportunity, including the industry and geography in which the investee company operates. Below is an evolving and non-exhaustive list of some of the ESG factors that may be considered relevant to the Company's investments:

Environmental Factors

- Avoidance and reduction of environmental pollution
- Waste Management
- Protection of biodiversity
- Sustainable use and protection of water and maritime resources
- Transition to a circular economy, avoidance of waste and recycling
- Protection of healthy ecosystems
- Sustainable land use

Social Factors

- Health and safety
- Compliance with recognised labour law standards (no child labour, no forced labour and no discrimination)
- Fair working conditions, diversity, and training and development opportunities
- Adequate product safety, including health protection
- Inclusive projects or consideration of the interests of communities and social minorities

Governance Factors

- Anti-corruption and bribery
- Board independence
- Anti-money laundering
- Regulatory and tax compliance
- Facilitation of whistle-blowing
- Alignment of interests with minority shareholders
- Appropriate accounting practices
- Ethical business conduct
- Fair dealing with investors and other stakeholders
- Transparency with investment community

Sustainability Risks

Sustainability risks can manifest themselves in different ways depending on the particular characteristics of a risk and the investment(s) to which it relates. To the extent that a sustainability risk occurs, or occurs in a manner that is not anticipated, there may be a material negative impact on the value of an investment (which may involve an entire loss of value of the relevant investment) and a corresponding negative impact on the Net Asset Value of the Company.

The Company invests primarily in securities listed on stock exchanges in India and listed securities of companies with a Significant Presence in India. India is located in a part of the world that has historically been prone to natural disasters such as earthquakes and tsunamis, and India is economically sensitive to environmental events. For example, agriculture occupies a more prominent position in the Indian economy than in more developed economies and the Indian economy is therefore more susceptible to natural disasters in India and surrounding regions. Any such events could have an adverse impact on the value of the Company's investments and could have a material adverse effect on the Company's profitability, Net Asset Value and the price of the Ordinary Shares.

In addition to environmental risks, the Company's returns may also be impacted by social and governance risks, such as those arising from changes in law or regulation and the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. A description of the material risks that are relevant to the Company are set out in the section of the Registration Document headed "Risk Factors".

Laws, regulations and industry norms play a significant role in controlling the impact of sustainability factors on many industries, particularly in respect of environmental and social factors. Any changes in such measures, or a failure to comply with such measures, may have a material impact on the operations, costs and profitability of investee companies. For example:

- a failure to comply with environmental, social or governance standards may result in reputational damage, causing a fall in demand for products and services, or loss of business opportunities for a company or industry group;
- changes in laws, regulations or industry norms may give rise to possible fines, sanctions or changes in consumer behaviour affecting a company or an entire industry's prospects for growth and development;
- changes in laws or regulations may generate higher demand for, and thus increase the prices of, securities of companies perceived as meeting higher ESG standards - prices of such securities may also become more volatile if the market perception of a particular company's adherence to ESG standards changes; and
- changes in laws or regulations may incentivise companies to provide misleading information about their environmental, social or governance standards or activities, which may expose them to reputational damage and/or financial penalties in the future.

Sustainability risks can lead to a deterioration in the financial profile, profitability or reputation of underlying portfolio investments and thus may materially impact the Company's market price or liquidity. The impact of sustainability risks on an investment may only emerge over the medium to long term and investment decisions may be made on that basis, with the result that other investments may prove more profitable in the shorter term. Furthermore, sustainability risks may not be realised in the manner or to the extent anticipated by the Investment Manager with the result that investments made on an assumption of the applicability of sustainability risks may not perform as well as expected.

Assessment of sustainability risks is complex and may be based on ESG data which is difficult to obtain and incomplete, estimated, out of date or otherwise materially inaccurate. In addition, even when such data is identified and obtained, as with any data, there can be no guarantee that ESG data will be correctly assessed. Assessments of sustainability risks may not be conclusive and, where consistent with the investment policy of the Company, the Investment Manager has the discretion to make investment decisions notwithstanding the potential for sustainability risks associated with the relevant investments. Equally, the assessment of sustainability risks inevitably involves a degree of subjectivity and there can be no guarantee that investments made by the Company, even those which integrate sustainability risks into the investment selection process, will reflect the beliefs or values of any particular investor.

For certain types of investments, sustainability risks may not be deemed relevant as the Investment Manager does not believe that ESG factors pose a risk of an actual or a potential material negative impact on the value of the relevant investments. Furthermore, the Investment Manager may determine that it is not possible or practicable to integrate sustainability risks into a particular investment decision. The circumstances in which sustainability risks are not or cannot be integrated into investment decision-making may change over time depending on ESG data or other information which may become available.

The integration of sustainability risks in the investment decision-making process may have the effect of excluding profitable investments from the Company's investment universe and may also cause the Company to sell or refrain from purchasing investments that would otherwise have been expected to be profitable.
