This form must be signed by all shareholders. If being signed by a corporation, this form must be completed under its common seal or under the hand of an officer of the company or attorney duly authorised on their behalf.

Where signing under a power of Attorney, the Attorney confirms that no revocation of that power has been received. An originally certified copy of the Power of Attorney, including the Power of Attorney's signature, must be lodged with this form if it has not been previously supplied.

A redemption of ordinary shares may be subject to either income tax and capital gains tax. In particular, private shareholders that sell their shares via the redemption mechanism could find they are subject to income tax on the gains made on the redeemed shares rather than the more usual capital gains tax on the sale of their shares in the market. However individual circumstances do vary, so shareholders who are in any doubts about the redemption or the action that should be taken should consult their stockbroker, accountant, tax adviser or other independent financial adviser.
